

danforrester@hotmail.com

07402 049334

www.danforrester.co.uk

Genre: Espionage Thriller, Humour

Audience: Adult

ISBN: 978-1-0686217-3-4

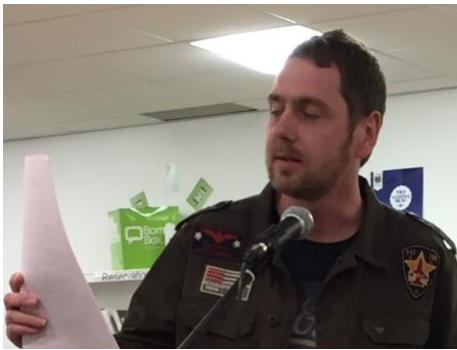

Format: Paperback

268 pages | 5.06" x 7.81"

Price: £9.99

Publication Date: 01/08/2025

Publisher: Cords & Cardigan Press

CRABS by Dan Forrester

CRABS is a comic spy thriller where Slow Horses meets Goldfinger and has a fight. At the heart of the story is Lucy, a career-driven loner who discovers friendship, love, and her dream career only when she stops chasing them.

SANTA exists. They just don't want you to know.

When wannabe spy Lucy Simmons discovers a plot by the criminal organisation CRABS to replace world leaders with clones under their control, no-one takes her seriously. But when someone starts assassinating agents, Lucy learns of a traitor in their midst and must go rogue with a team of secret agents known by their code name SANTA to find the mastermind before it's too late.

Traitors, assassins and interfering mums. That's why spies work in the shadows.

About the author

Dan Forrester graduated from college back when he was still young and happy. Several years later, with life having addressed that, he took up writing and has since won awards for his short stories from both the National Association of Writers' Groups and the Lancashire Authors' Association. He has also had short stories published by Reader's Digest and Writers' & Artists' Yearbook amongst others, and his first novel Havock won Judges' Pick in Grindstone Literary's International Novel Prize.

Dan lives in West Yorkshire with his wife Angela and likes to spend time reading or watching a good sit com. The rest of the time he mostly does as he's told.